Closure of Croydon Counselling Foundation

We deeply regret to announce that Croydon Counselling Foundation has not re-opened as intended on 1 September 2020 and now will not do so again.

The Covid-19 anti-virus measures of lockdown and social distancing have meant that it has been impossible to run our counselling service in a sustainable way and we must be considered as being closed indefinitely.

We apologise that the service we provided for the local community and run by professional volunteers and employees for the last 45 years will not be open to offer psychological counselling.

The Board and staff wish to thank all organisations and individuals who have supported us and our services over these many years. Their help has been highly valued.

If you have any outstanding correspondence or questions, please write by the end of November 2020 to:

Croydon Counselling Foundation
Kyle House
4 Frith Road
Croydon CR0 1TA

or email: email@croydoncounsellingfoundation.org.uk

Other Counselling Organisations

We have collected information on other counselling services in the area, but we encourage you to contact them for more accurate information on procedures and availability. The coronavirus has affected many organisations and not all are offering online services or are taking new referrals. Please be aware that counselling fees will vary.
